

Emerging Growth Matters

Sklar Kirsh's corporate attorneys have substantial experience in assisting founders and investors in navigating the early-stage decisions that are critical for startups and emerging growth companies. From determining the appropriate form of entity and jurisdiction of formation, formulating IP strategies and advising on employment matters, to structuring and documenting seed investments, venture capital financings and complex equity and governance agreements, we work closely with our clients to articulate and reflect optimal structures and outcomes to meet both immediate business needs as well as long-term strategic goals. The decisions made at formation have critical implications for success, including providing a pragmatic structure for future capital raising and the path toward a desired exit strategy. Sklar Kirsh attorneys have experience guiding startups and emerging ventures through each important milestone.
